Life Well Lived

Death jogs our minds about what's important.

It separates wheat from chaff.

*Life isn't about money and big houses
or fancy cars and titles.*

*It's about family and friends
and our relationship with God and whether we love.*

*We can't fit all that on a tombstone,
so we carve our names and our dates*

*of birth and death and hope that,
somewhere between those two dates,
life was well lived.*
