

Lloyd was born March 31, 1922 in Benson County, ND. He was raised by Carl and Bertha Hill in the Roseglen and Ryder, ND areas and attended school there.

On August 22, 1944 he entered the United States Army and served with Company H, 331st Infantry in Rhineland, Ardennes and Central Europe during World War II. He was honorably discharged on October 6, 1945 and returned to the family farm near Roseglen.

On October 25, 1946, Lloyd married June Haugen in Glasgow, MT. Following their marriage they made their home on the farm near Roseglen, where they lived until moving to Garrison, ND. They later moved to Minot. He was a truck driver during the construction of the Garrison Dam and was a bulldozer operator and truck driver for Peter Kiewit during the construction of the runways at Minot Air Force Base. Shortly after that he went to work for Ivor Lawson who operated what was then the City Service Gas Station on South Broadway in Minot, and in 1963, he took over the station for himself. The name of the station changed to South Hill Gulf and he continued with Gulf until it closed in 1975. He then built his own shop at his home south of Minot. He was not only busy in his shop, but did a lot of work around for area farmers. He finally retired in 2004.

Lloyd loved working on cars and tinkering in his shop. He loved gardening and mowing his lawn.
