

On Ken and Mickey's 60th Wedding Anniversary:

*Countless memories and lifelong dreams
Together as one; forever it seems
Six decades spent, living that life
Fondly identified, "husband and wife"*

*Struggles were faced and fights were won
A life of accomplishments; so much was done
Five successful children are enough to show
The self-less strength only good parents know*

*Years have passed; the family has grown
Not always together, but never quite alone
You have been blessed and hopefully can see
You are what others desperately long to be*

*Sixty years together is a lot to show
The extent of our pride, you'll never quite know
Today we honor the bond you would not create with another
On this day, we celebrate your love for each other.*
